The new patent pending m&m™ series of Lucky Packs incorporate the patent pending Make it Mine™ window to sling packs allowing consumers and businesses to customize these bags with their own personal style, corporate logo or tag line.

The m&m™ series of Lucky Packs are the sling packs of tomorrow. Sling packs have quickly become the choice bag for kids and adults alike replacing the heavy backpacks of yesterday. The Lucky Packs are lightweight sling packs that are used for school, the gym, the beach, a day of shopping, travel or as a premium corporate gift. The Lucky Packs are the next generation of sling packs, as they not only come with the patent pending m&m™ window but are also made with high-end state of the art quality materials. The Lucky Pack series of sling packs are made with high density microfiber and ripstop with air wicking mesh material on the back for ultimate comfort and style. The Lucky Pack XP series incorporates a 2.5" expansion which gives consumers the ability of expanding their bags when needed.

Currently the only means of identifying sling packs, backpacks or travel goods is via id tags or other personal items that are added to the exterior of bags. Make it Mine™ patent pending design incorporates clear window pockets that can only be accessed from the interior of the bags. These clear window pockets allow people to add their own unique touch of personalized style to their bags. The clear window pockets come in all different shapes and sizes. Consumers can add in photos of their loved ones, lucky charms, favorite sports team logos, school mascot or any item that will allow them to quickly identify, stylize and customize their bags. The days of all bags at a school or gym looking alike are over.

J. Miller, CEO of Global Solutions 4 stated, "This is an exciting time for our company with the launch of the m&m™ series of products. The Lucky Pack series will be the first series of products with the M&M patent pending design that will be introduced to the retail, online and premium marketplace. The Lucky Packs will allow consumers to customize their bags by adding their personal lucky charm or personalized item to be displayed in the m&m™ window."

The appeal of this new concept reaches an enormous target market. Kids will be able to display their favorite cartoon character. Teenagers sling packs will display their favorite music group, video game, or school team logo. College kids will show their school mascots. Moms and grandmothers will include their kids or grandkids photo. Dads will display their favorite sports team when going to the gym.

For the first time, the corporate premium market no longer has to special order products with long lead times for products to include their logos, events or tag lines. Companies will be able to order stock products and simply add in their logos or tag lines. In addition these Luck Packs are the perfect items for fundraisers, as it allows an organizations' theme or logo to be easily displayed in the m&m™ window.
